

PRESENTATION OF THE FIRM

The Russo-Croce law and tax firm was created combining the ideas of lawyers Giorgia Eliana Russo and Nicola Croce to create a dynamic structure, in which the customer can find an effective legal solution to their concerns. This means that clients can count and trust the professionals as they deliver their service in an authentic manner.

For the Russo-Croce law firm, the civil law represents the sector of prevalent competence. Over the years, the two founders have specialized in the fields of family law, protection in the sector for compensation regarding damages, credit recovery and tax law.

The Firm's policy consists of providing timely assistance based on direct consultancy, paying attention to the needs and expectations of the client which is used to identify the most effective strategy for the specific case. In particular, the professional relationship with the customer is widely taken into consideration as there will be various meetings regarding the concerns of the client. Furthermore, the meetings will also supply the client with relevant information such as the management of the case and the cost in order for the client to make a responsible and informed decision.

In the first meeting with the client, the client is informed of possible solutions that are related to the issue presented. Moreover, during the meeting, a cost estimate is drawn up taking in account the complexity of the assignment, the nature of the case and the needs communicated by the individual.

The nature of the case requires the need for professional synergy with the firm. The firm deals with civil law as well as criminal and commercial issues as well. This is due to the collaboration between professionals who have been working alongside the founders of the study. One of the reasons for the partnership between the professionals is finding solutions to questions including various juridical themes that involve high degree of specialisation as it is strongly necessary.
